Description

The matter for determination was whether the authority was correct in its decision to refuse to issue the building consent for a proposed house.

The authority's decision arose from its view that it had received insufficient information in the supporting documentation for the building consent to be satisfied that it would comply with certain clauses of the Building Code (Schedule 1, Building Regulations 1992).

The authority's concerns were in regard to the wall system itself and weathertightness detailing to be used in conjunction with the wall system.
